In a maze puzzle on a sphere, there can be only one way out and this is "Esc". For the most part, you know the way out. There are obstacles in the way. The player is not given enough time to visit all the points. This is a "lose-game" game. It is "mazing". In "zeMa", the player can control the way out, but must react fast enough to the obstacles. If the player is not prepared for the obstacles, the game is lost. There are many ways to get out of here, but each is discovered in a different random order. When you are sure you have found the right way, it is up to you to find the exit before time runs out. So, it is not necessary to visit all the points. About the game: Originally intended as a prototype for "Kappa", was developed in two weeks for the 2007 Paradox Prize. The idea came from the well-known game "Roguelike", but there are no random maps. The level geometry is different from random maps and is based on a choropleth map. The gameplay consists of "mine", which are the points that you visit. Each time you start, you get a new map. The player can control the way out and can go from "Here" to "There". There is a limit to the number of points to visit and time. There are obstacles in the way. All the while, there is a possibility that you are entering the "Here", where you must "find the way out" as fast as possible before time runs out. About the Engine: A Javascript engine based on Mozilla SpiderMonkey. About the UI: There is a grid (the mine field) and a blue "path" to the way out. The blue dots are the "points" the player has visited, but it is random. A blue dot means that you visited this point. The UI is for reference only. The game engine will read this UI information, but will do it in its own way. About the music: This is a Java implementation of the music of Deep Cello, by Arjen Noordegraaf. Its source code is included in the main folder of the project. This is only a sample of the music. The code is not enough to create a full score. **** REVIEWS **** The Review System for "ze

RPEUI Version: 1.2.1.RC2 Hey there. I am the owner and lead developer of 407RPEUI. I've been working on this thing for a while, and at this point, I think it's ready to take it to production. I'm adding it here for people to try out and hopefully review. And if it works great, then we'll have something in-production to post to the blog and any other places people post stuff on the web! You'll be able to download it from GitHub: And from here: Torrent: Direct Download: Note to testers: Don't go on Reddit or anywhere else and post about this! The other people there often spread wtare misrepresentations and slander about stuff they haven't tested. When I moved my site content to the new server and hosting, I had a lot of issues with file sizes being damaged or simply didn't show up after moving everything (these are because of the 6MB max upload limit on the destination). It was nearly a week or more before the site could accept any content without it being rejected. It got to the point where the content I was uploading was being rejected outright. I had to block uploads and try to read the error code that shows up when uploading large files (the ones that the max-uploads limit would barf on), and I started finding out that large files meant small files. So, most likely things I was uploading were being conjoined into one large file. Some were properly concidered and accepted, some were conjoined, some were just damaged, and some were completely uploaded but just not showing up. If you have issues, please submit a ticket so we can work through this.
