New Delhi, Dec 28 (ANI): Prime Minister Narendra Modi and his government have claimed a victory in the election of Central Ministerial Committee of School Education (CMSC), with all-out support from the BJP. The Committee comprises of 20 Central Ministers of School Education and is the highest decision making body on educational matters in the country. They will be formally appointed as the Central Ministers after approval of the Cabinet at the meeting which is to be held on January 9, 2016. Out of total 9 seats, BJP has won all as it had full majority in the Council. BJD and JDS have won 2 each and Congress and TRS have won one each. Modi congratulated the elected members for the role they will play in formulating the overall educational policy of the country. The other important decision that was taken in the meeting was the nomination of Member of Parliament - Member of Legislative Assembly (MLA), as the Committee convener. Dr. P. Bharathiraja of Thiruchirapalli was elected as the convener of the Committee. The Central Ministerial Committee of School Education (CMSC) will have 20 members, including 10 Cabinet Ministers and 10 Members of Parliament. Dwight Howard is the NBA's most popular player among audience members of NBA TV, and he's the leader in game-day attendance in the NBA, according to a report by The New York Times. It's no secret that Howard detests LeBron James, with the two engaging in public sniping over the years. But that doesn't appear to be enough for Howard to block people out from attending his games. According to an NBA projection study from New Orleans-based data scientist Mathieu Deutsch, Howard is the No. 2 highest-attended player in the NBA, based on on-court attendance as of this past season. Howard's fan base is no joke. He is the No. 2 most popular NBA player in the entire country, and the No. 1 player on NBA TV. The Los Angeles Lakers, the team that traded him away from the Magic, are the No. 3 most popular team in the NBA. Howard topped Deutsch's list ahead of James, Kyrie Irving, Kyrie and LeBron. Deutsch also noted that the "Steadiness" metric he creates is predictive of the "Remaining Games" metric, which is predictive of future non-conference point differential. Thus, Deutsch is basically tooting his own horn when he says that Howard is the most popular player in the NBA, but also that he is the most popular player in the NBA because he's a great player and a perennial MVP candidate and "it's all the above." Fan base is all that matters, and in the old days, it was all that mattered to be famous or a good basketball player. Nowadays, it's a mix of things and also largely about who you are as a person. If that person can work out and it looks like you'll do a good job in the workout, they'll figure you're a good guy to go to your second family. But you still have to be able to work out.
