could be suffering from pain or dysfunction of the shoulder. If the pain is not present while using the move, it is not a good sign for the shoulder. It is recommended that you refrain from all activities such as punching, lifting and dropping objects from your shoulder. Especially if you are in the intensive training period, you should understand that intense exercise may lead to shoulder problems. You should use a lighter load so that you could incorporate some muscle into the movement. Practice makes perfect with rotational exercises. The more you practice, the better you will be in controlling the movement. Maintaining good mechanics with the movement and correct use of the shoulder and elbow should be practiced for a longer period. This will give you a better reflex control, which is required in a boxing game. There are some exercises that require endurance. This is not the case for rotational exercises, which are easier to perform. The body will most likely require less strength for rotational exercises. Conclusions With this information, we can see that boxing requires extensive muscular, ligament and joint strength and stability. It is evident that all the exercises that we have discussed require this, as well as some coordination. While throwing the punch, we have to be able to maintain constant target velocity to achieve maximum power. The rotational movements have to be properly built up to maintain the correct form. Many people forget the constant force to train and as a result, they have arm problems. While performing rotational movements, we must have a firm grasp on the exercises we have discussed so that we could maintain correct form. We must also keep practicing them so that we could get the best results.Folk Academy The Folk Academy () was a prominent visual arts school in the former East Germany, based in Berlin.
